Reading test on its way. Idaho's reading test was a big sticking point at the end of the 2018 legislative session, but a new statewide test is on the way for 2018-19. The state and Dallas-based vendor Istation agreed on a contract extension to roll out the test in every K-3 classroom. Proponents say the new test will provide teachers with richer data — which they can use to help young at-risk readers.
